PART I—TREASURE TROVE.

CHAPTER I.

THE FINDING OF THE TREASURE.

On a fresh summer morning, before breakfast-hour, at the country-house where he was visiting, a young man put out in a small row-boat on to the bosom of New York Bay, just then rippling and dimpling at the rosy touch of dawn.

Oliver Grey was an artist by profession; a fine looking person—twenty-five, perhaps—with dark, restless eyes, a broad forehead, and swarthy skin. At this moment his mood was one of fierce discontent. Being an artist he was poor—being poor he could not have what he wanted. What he desired most on earth was the heart and hand of Cammillia Catherwood, sister of his friend George Catherwood, at whose father's house he was staying, having been invited to spend a portion of the summer at "The Poplars," to take his ease and sketch the beautiful scenery of the bay. He had accepted this hospitality—even while he felt humiliated by it—not so much to escape his garret as to bask in the dangerous joy of Camilla's presence. This morning he came out to sketch, but he only dreamed of her, until half wild at thoughts of his own poverty.

Urged by this discontented mood he fell to rowing vigorously for relief, soon finding himself close in to the high shores of a certain island, and near a familiar spot to which George and himself frequently came.

In the face of the rocky bluff there was an ocean-cave. A very small cave, which the fishermen and other common people ignominiously dubbed a hole. It may have been larger once; but at this time it was filled, nearly to the mouth, with deep sea sand. In high water it was covered entirely by the waves. But at low tide a small boat could push its way in; and as it afforded a cool retreat from the summer sun, the two friends often cast anchor there for an hour or so, while they ate, their luncheon, or sketched the opposite hills.

The tide, then at its extremest ebb, left the farther end of the sand cavern quite bare and dry. It was the first time that the visitor had ever found it so. He was thinking of running his boat aground, and getting out, although there seemed to be nothing more interesting than clam-shells strewn about, when, suddenly, something sparkled in the level sun rays. His eyes were drawn to the glimmering point. What was it? He looked again more earnestly. It was the end of a brass bound wooden chest, protruding from the sand. The glittering of a brass nail had drawn his attention to the object.

The color rushed into Oliver Grey's moody face. He thought of Captain Kid, of shipwrecked merchantmen, and the Arabian Nights, all in one flash of his vivid imagination.

Then he laughed at himself, pushing his nut shell of a skiff close to this buried chest and leaping lightly out.

"At least I will see what it is. The dirty garments of some poor sailor's kit, I suppose"

With his oar he went to work to dig away the sand. It was hard work, and the perspiration soon stood on his forehead; but he had brought to light enough of the quaint, foreign looking box to show that it was no common sailor's chest.

It was of strips of some costly oriental woods, in dark and light, very solid and heavy, banded together so as to be almost covered with its brass fastenings. In half an hour he had uncovered the whole lid. The box proved to be about four feet long, by two wide, and two deep.

At first he despared of opening the chest without further implements; for the hard wood was well preserved, and the clasps scarcely rusted. It had evidently been buried in dry sand—not exposed to the action of water, or even moisture, to any great extent. With the blade of a stout knife, which the artist carried with him for use of various kinds on his little expiditions, he succeeded, after a few minutes, in pushing back the simple, old fashioned lock, which sprang out of its place with a click. Then, for a moment Oliver hesitated.

As soon as he could command himself he cautiously but eagerly raised the lid.

What did he find?

A corpse—which looked as if it might have been placed there yesterday, so perfect was its preservation—jammed down into this impromptu coffin, so much too short for it. It was that of a noble and handsome man, not many years older than himself, whose jet black hair fell down in long ringlets about the velvet collar and ruffled shirt front. The dress was that of 1800, or before, when rich gentlemen yet indulged in velvet and thread lace. In the forehead was a deep wound, as if of a hatchet, and there were blood stains over the garment. Who could the murdered stranger be?

Ah! while he asked himself the question—while he gazed, with lips apart, and concentrated looks of interest and dread—a change crept over the inmate of the chest. The grayish hue deepened on the face, the features sunk, fell; the yellow lace ruffles, the silken vestments faded out of color—out of shape melted away. The lineaments dissolved as if they had been but a dream of his feverish fancy; and as his hand which grasped the edge of the box, shook with nervous surprise, this slight impulse, aiding the action of the atmosphere, completed the ruin The corpse and its clothing dropped to the bottom of the chest, little more than a handful of dry dust!

A skull—a handful of bones—some ashes.

Never in his life had anything occurred which gave him so strange and dreadful a sensation as when he saw that vivid figure moulder into nothingness before him. He felt almost guilty to think he had raised the lid, and thus destroyed this semblance of the man who had been. He now wished that his friend George had been with him to see what he saw, and to corrobate, by further testimony, the strange story he should have to tell. He almost expected that the tale would be ridiculed as one of his many ardent dreams. Yet here was the chest. They could not gainsay that. And there were the bones and the dim outline of the figure, the skull, with its ghastly fracture, telling its mute story of crime—and

What was that?

Something glowed and glimmered like a coal at the bottom of the chest!

Again the poor artist's pulse drummed in his ears, while every atom of blood in his body seemed rushing to and fro in the wildest confusion.

After a little hesitation he reached down with his broad bladed pallette knife, and gingerly and daintily, with thrills of reluctance running through his eagerness, fished up the burning coal, and blew from it the ashes, of the dead.

The coal was a large ruby. It was as red as fire, and as lucid as sunshine.

Oliver rubbed it with his handkerchief, opened his almost empty purse, and dropped the jewel within for safe keeping. Then he examined the chest further. There were more gems glimmering and quivering like live things amid that human dust.

It was not long until the young man forgot to be too particular. The pallette knife was no longer certain and swift enough. With his trembling fingers he pushed about the poor bones, finding plenty of treasure now; and there, right under where the heart must have been, a small gold locket. With something of awe and reverence overcoming the greed which had taken possession of him he opened the case.

A woman's likeness; young and sweet, smiled out upon him, as brightly as if it had not lain in that dark prison house for fifty years. Tears came into Oliver's sharp eyes as he met the laughing glance of the soft blue eyes shining beneath the ripples of yellow hair. But those tears soon dried in the exultation of his new possessions.

When certain that the chest had yielded the last of its jewels he emptied them into his handkerchief, and tried to compute their value. The horror of his first impressions gave way to triumph.

The treasure was his own by right of discovery. There was no clue to their long perished owner. He would keep the gems, and he would say nothing even to George, of his adventure.

Thinking thus he again looked at the miniature; and this time observed a name, formed by a setting of brilliants around the inside of the case, in German text—ETHELDA.

An old fashioned English name.—Oliver did not reflect, that the poor cousin of Camilla, dependant on her uncle Catherwood, bore the name, unusual as it was.

Burying the strange coffin again in the shifting sand, he rowed back to the little landing at the foot of the lawn in front of the Poplars, his heart burning with intense pleasure at his unexpected good fortune. A group of three awaited him as he sprang out upon the beach—his friend George with his sister and cousin.

After an eager glance at Miss Catherwood, the artist darted a look of suprise at the young girl in white, just behind her. It only then occurred to him that Miss Ashleigh's name was Ethelda!

He put away the singular feeling which arose at this coincidence, and at breakfast was the life of the party. All the day he was the gay, brilliant, vivacious. Not even the appearance of Mr. Lytton, Camillia's most favored suitor—a fop of the first water, rich, aristocratic, and egotistical—who drove out from the city in the morning, and idled away the long, bright summer day at the Poplars, could disconcert him. He had despised the dandy, and now he felt that he might yet hope to rival him.

Camilla, as proud as she was coquettish, knew very well that her brother's artist friend worshipped her with a passion, before which the languid admiration of her other admirer was like a star to the sun; and that day she flirted with both most cunningly; but for once Oliver was beyond her comprehension. She could neither mortify nor depress him. He was even good natured to Mr. Lytton. His dark eyes glittered with the consciousness of secret power.

And yet he was troubled with certain fear.

All day it had been growing upon him that there was a resemblance between the Ethelda of the miniature and the living Ethelda, who moved before him, golden haired and blue eyed, the quiet, almost sad, companion of her haughty and brilliant cousin.

At dinner that evening he suddenly asked Mr. Catherwood if Ethelda was a family name. In answer he was told the following brief story:

THE TRADEGY OF ROBERT CATRERWOOD

"Ethelda is a name which so appears, here and there in our family," said Mr. Catherwood, reflectively, allowing his coffee to cool in its translucent cup.—"We are of English descent, you know, Mr. Gray. Our Ethel's grandmother was named Ethelda—poor lady! Her's was a sad, a terrible fate!"

"Oh, tell me about her!" almost grasped Oliver.

"It was always believed that she was taken captive by pirates."

"Ah!" murmured Oliver, his black eyes enlarging.

"Yes. Did you ever hear of anything more pitiful?"

"Never," was his earnest response, and he was so pale that Camilla would have laughed at him, only she could never hear the story of her great aunt's fate without tears coming to her own eyes.

"She was so young and beautiful, and so happy!" murmured the narrator with as much sympathy as if he had been personally acquainted with her. "It came about in this wise: There were two Catherwoods, brothers, one of whom conducted the mercantile house at Bombay, the other in London. Some reverses overtaking the London branch, and some political events occurring at the same time, induced the elder brother in England, to sell out and emigrate to America, where he established a prosperous and flourishing business, and wrote to his brother in India to dispose of his interests there, if possible, and join him in the new world. The Indian climate did not agree with Robert Catherwood who had intended returning to his native land until he received this letter, when he changed his mind, and concluded to go to America, where it appeared probable that he could still further enlarge his handsome fortune by trading with Bombay. At this time he was about thirty years of age, and had been married only a couple of years, to a fair English girl, lovely and good, who to judge from his letters, had made him the happiest of men. She was somewhat homesick in India, and quite willing to exchange Bombay for New York.

"His brother (the present speaker's grandfather) wrote to Robert to put as large a sum of ready money as he could command, into gems which could be procured to advantage in India, and would be easily reconverted into funds on his arrival in this country, where a taste for luxury was growing as the wealth of the cities increased, which had created a large demand for fine jewels.

"The voyages of those days were tedious, and not without extraneous perils added to those of navigation. Pirates were not unknown, especially in the Indian seas; but this was only another inducement for Robert to get his wealth into the smallest compass. Indeed, it was still told in the family, that James, the elder brother, advised him to conceal the gems about his person, by stitching them into his clothing, so that in case of accident, should they escape with their lives, were it from a shipwrecked vessel or what not, their fortunes would be rescued also.

"It was never certain whether Robert thus converted his funds; but it was taken for granted that he did. He wrote a cheerful letter, announcing that he had engaged passage on a certain merchants vessel to sail at such a date, along with his wife and baby-girl.

"These were the last imediate tidings they ever received from him. My grandfather—I have often heard my grandfather tell," continued Mr. Catherwood—"waited and watched for the expected ship, until he grew worn and sick with waiting and watching.

"Full two years after the loss of the vessel, one will and stormy winter night, the old brass knocker on the door of my grandfather's city house—the cosy one I still occupy, Mr. Grey, although we have a bell to the door now—thundered forth a succession of imperious raps, which aroused all its inmates. It was midnight, and family and servants had long retired, except the master of the dwelling, who chanced to be still sitting up in his library, looking over his private papers.

Startled by the sudden knocking, and with a presentiment thrilling him that some revelation of importance awaited him, he hurried to the door. It took him two minutes to draw back the iron bar placed before it at night, and withdraw the bolts; and during that time, he heard a light foot run down the steps and away from the house. On first looking out, he saw nothing; a gust of wind and rain swept past him, and he made a movement to close the door before he perceived a little creature in the doorway, wrapped in a warm cloak, from the hood of which the bright little anxious face peeped out, as she held up a letter in one of her chubby hands.

'Is there no one with you?'

'Bobo has gone 'way,' lisped the child. 'He tol' Etha mus' give 'oo letters.

Surprised beyond words, he drew the child in from the rain, and carried her in his arms into the library, for she could not have been over three years of age, where he held her on his knee, while he tore open the missive she bore, and read;

"The child who gives you this paper is Ethelda, daughter of Robert and Ethelda Catherwood, who were taken captive by pirates, something over two years ago. Her father was killed by us, after holding him captive over a month, for not acknowledging the truth about his money. He did not have nearly so much as we expected. Her mother died of a broken heart—I suppose—six months after I compelled her to marry me, the captain of the pirate vessel. I was very fond of her, and might have become a better man if she had lived. However, that's neither here nor there. I took a pirate's oath to her, on her dying bed that I would bring this child to its uncle, James Catherwood, in New York city, and leave it with him, with the requests of its mother that he would adopt it and care for it as his own. I've put myself out a good deal to keep my promise; but a pirate's oath is sacred to him; and she said she'd ask God to forgive me if I would. I hope you'll be as kind to the little tot as Bobo—that's me—has been. It's cruel hard for me to give her up. She's a great pet with all the ship—but here goes! Good-bye, little Etha—you will never see Bobo again!"

The little girl grew up a great pet in my grandfather's house. Quite a fortune came to her from Bombay, but the man whom she married contrived to lose it for her in unfortunate speculations. Our Ethel is her daughter. Both her parents are now dead, as you know.

Oliver pushed back his chair and made his escape into the twilight out of doors. A mighty struggle was going on in his mind.

When he returned to the drawing room, Ethel was alone at the piano, Cammilla was the center of a flattering group. As he encountered the soft, sad eyes of the orphan he felt like a thief. Abruptly he turned from them, but he could not banish conviction.

There was a vision ever before his eyes, floating in the air, resting on the carpet, coming between him and the face of the woman he loved. Everywhere he turned he saw a brass bound chest, and in it the yellow corpse of a noble looking man, with a cruel wound on the high forehead, and black ringlets creeping down about the throat; and while he gazed, fascinated, touched, and shrinking, the vivid decapitation turned gray, and melted like a vapor, and dissolved into a handful of ashes, and as it faded out a voice echoed hollowly from the chest:

"Give the orphan girl, Ethelda, that which belongs to her!"

The continuation of this story will be found in the New York Weekly for this week. No. 50, now ready, and for sale by all news agents. Ask for the No. containing the second part of Mrs. Victor's great story, "Who owned the jewels; or, The Heiress of the Sandal-Wood Chest." Remember! the New York Weekly containing the second part of Mrs. Victor's story is now ready.

The laws of prohibition for the benefit of the Indians is already among the United States statutes. It is counted wrong to sell liquor to the red skins as the following section of the act of congress governing such cases shows:

"If any person shall sell, exchange, give, or dispose of any spirituous liquors or wine to any Indian under the charge of any Indian superintendent or Indian agent appointed by the United States, or shall introduce or attempt to introduce, any spirituous liquor or wine into the Indian country, such person, on conviction thereof, before the proper district or circuit court of the United States, shall be imprisoned for a period not exceeding two years, and shall be fined not more than three hundred dollars.—Act. March 15, 1864, Sec. 1, 13 United States, at large 29.

Would it not be as well for our people to insist upon something in the way of prohibition being done, in order to save others as well as Indians? Wise statesmanship is needed to save all races and classes from the destructive liquor traffic.

MAKING FRUIT TREES BEAR.

In a recent number of the Cultivator and Country Gentleman, L. L. Fairchild, of Illinois, writes that paper in commendation of the practice, after having experimented satisfactorily on his fruit trees, where they remained barren of fruit. We quote a portion of his remarks, as follows:

"For the past two years I have experimented on my own grounds on a large number of trees, to satisfy myself of the feasibility and practicability of making trees bear at will in common orchard culture. I have also observed other orchards and gardens where the experiment is being tried. So far it has exceded my expectations; what will be the result for a term of years, time alone will determine.

"My way of operating is simple, and apparently not injurious to the tree in any perceptible degree. It is simply with a sharp knife to sever the bark of the limb by running it around three times within one eighth of an inch of each other; the rings thus cut should not be removed. The philosophy given of the matter is this: The sap rises uninterruptedly through the sap wood, comes to the leaf, and its return being impeded by the circular rings of dissevered bark, swells and forces out the dormant fruit buds. The operation must be performed when the sap flows freely, at any time during the longest days of the year."

Blessed are they who seek relief from liver complaint, biliousness, severe lingering coughs and Bronchitis, by using Dr. Pierce's Alt. Ext. or Golden Medical Discovery, for they shall be happy in knowing that the cure is complete. $1,000 reward is offered by the proprietor for a medicine that will equal it in the cure of all the diseases for which it is recommended. For constipation of the bowels and as a blood purifier, for the cure of blotches and pimples on the face, salt rheum, erysipelas, and all skin diseases, this medicine is unequaled. Sold by druggists.

Venice is built on 177 islands. The grand canal cuts the city into two equal parts, and is serpentine in its course. From these start out a great number of smaller canals, which correspond to streets in smaller cities. There are 150 small canals; add to these the small roads or streets of the city, and the whole amount to 2,480. These canals are crossed by 400 bridges.

"How do I look, Pompey?' said a young dandy to his servant, as he had finished dressing. "Elegant, massa; you look bold as a lion.' 'Bold as a lion, Pompey! How do you know!—You never saw a lion." 'Oh, yes, massa, I see one down to Massa Jenks', in his stable.' Down to Jenks', Pompey! Why you great fool, Jenks has not got a lion; that's a jackass."—"Can't help it, massa; you look jes like him."

At one of the ragged schools in Ireland a clergyman asked the question, "What is holiness?" A poor convert in dirty tattered rags, jumped up and said, 'Plase your riverence, it's to be clane inside.'

DEDICATION.—Our friends of St. Paul's Lutheran church, of this place, could not have elected a more propitious day fo dedicating their new and beautiful church than last Sunday, the 16th inst. It was a clear day with light southern breezes, warm enough almost for July, and the air was as balmy as May. Large numbers of the membership of that denomination were present from every direction, even as far away as Akron and Cleveland. A special train came loaded with people from Akron on Sunday—returning the same day—and quite a crowd arrived on Saturday evening by the Clinton and Massillon road. But it was a great bore that they had to walk about a mile after leaving the cars. We hope it wont always be this way. Religious services were held on Saturday evening and Sunday, as announced in our issue of last week, mostly in the German language. So many were in attendance that on Sunday it was impossible for them all to gain admission into the new building, although it will hold about a thousand people. As we cannot understand what the German ministers said, we will not try to tell it, but take it for granted that their discourses were appropriate to the solemn occasion which they were assembled to commemorate. Sunday afternoon Rev. ————, of Wooster, preached in English, which, of course, many of us could understand. His theme was on behalf of the Lutheran church, and he claimed it as a tree, not a branch of the reformation. To many of his hearers his discourse was replete with information in reference to that denomination. It embraces, he said, from 40,000,000, to 45,000,000 of members, including the households with which they stand related. Of course the speaker gave Luther great credit for the bold and vigorous positions he took, when he seceded from the church in which he had been brought up, and whose doctrines he once taught. Without invading sectarian views we may remark that his discourse was full of information concerning the church of his choice. Quite a number of ministers were present, many of whom preached at different times during the progress of the series of meetings held according to announcement. The fine new organ added much to the interest of the meetings by the clear notes of music it sent forth.

THE ELECTIONS.—Tuesday the 11th inst was a bad day for the democracy. Their modest birds have had the crow pretty well taken out of them, and we have not seen even a picture of one in their papers since the election. Stark county, which in other years never failed to be good for 800 to 1000 democratic majority, seems now to be hopelessly lost to the party. This time the majority is between 500 and 600, double what it was last year, in favor of the republicans. Even Ambler, whom they tried so hard to beat by borrowing a respectable man from the republicans to accomplish the feat, has a majority of 87 votes. The majorities of the republican ticket are as follows: Sherwood, 544; McIlvain, 536; Wilson, 541; Herring; 538; Ambler, 87; Wales, 607; Wilcox, 536; Truby, 645; Brenner, 536; Wilson, 573. All sorts of tickets were printed by the democracy, or on their behalf, but somehow they did not profit by it. Next to Mr. Ambler Messrs. Wales and Wilcox were the objects of of democratic displeasure, but the majorities with which they were triumphantly elected indicates that even their denunciations were of no avail. The importance of electing Mr. Lee over Mr. Wales must have been obvious to to the party, for by doing so they could have secured control, to a great extent, of the legislature, but this prize eluded their grasp. The other three counties were worse on the party than Stark, for the reported majorities in them are as follows: Jefferson, 912; Carroll, 410; Columbiana, 580—in all nearly 2000 more votes for Ambler than Ball received. The party may as well take one of their own men next time—borrowing candidates don't pay. Then the state has gone worse against them than the county, if reports are correct. The republican majority is reported at from 15,000 to 25,000—something unexpected by the republicans, and not conceded by the democrats before the election. According to reports at this writing the Ohio congressional delegation stands 14 republicans to 5 democrats. Mr. Schenck, republican, has been beaten by Campbell, an old whig-know-nothing-democrat, by a few votes, but his seat will be contested on account of illegal voting. Bingham, a well hated republican, is re elected by a handsome majority.

On the same day elections were held in four other states, and the republicans claim them all by the following majorities: Pennsylvania, 15,000; Indiana, unknown; Iowa, 30,000 to 40,000; and Nebraska some thousands.

ART NOTICE.—Those of our readers who have a taste for the beautiful, and have not already seen the excellent pictures on exhibition in the window of Mr. Estep's store, should hie at once to that locality and study, a pictorial bijou from the pencil of Mr. T. Mathews, who is well known in Massillon. The design is simple and the execution exquisite, highly complimentary to the genius from whose pencil it emanates. The portrait is expressive, combining artistic excellence with something that impresses every one with a conviction of its being a faithful portrait. The other, a cluster of flowers, is exceedingly pretty, and we are glad of the privilege of a short communion with these fascinating works of a Stark county artist.

The committee having charge of the park are still progressing with the work. It is now handsomely graded, and material is on the ground for further perfecting the work on hand. As the area is not large there will be opportunity to make in the more beautiful.

CITY BOARD OF EQUALIZATION.—The City Board for the equalization of values of real estate in Massillon city, will meet at the Mayor's office in said city at 1 o'clock, P. M., on Monday, Oct. 24th 1870 to hear and consider complaints. H. C. ELLISON, Auditor.

Further notice will be given next week.

DIED

—At his residence at Polo, Illinois, on Tuesday, the 4th inst., ALEXANDER MCCULLY, Esq., aged 71.

The simple mention of the fact above narrated brings up memories of the long inurned, long forgotten, long gone past, that will cause a thrill of sorrow in the hearts of a few of what may be said to have achieved the distinction of the oldest inhabitants in this city.

The few of the pioneer settlers who yet remain to tell of the early days and the olden time of Massillon, cannot fail to feel that in the death of Mr. McCully there passed away a kind hearted, genial gentleman, who in his days of prosperity, aided in laying broad and deep the foundations of this city, considered from a moral and social standpoint, and until the few yet remaining who co-operated with him shall have passed away, his name will be held in pleasant remembrance.

In the material and general improvement of this city in its early struggles for a place on the historic stage, no one contributed more freely than Mr. McCully, as more than one of our business stores and warehouses bears witness. Associated with him as was the writer, in business enterprises thirty-five years ago, he feels it due to a long cherished friendship to furnish a tribute to his memory, ephemeral though it may be, that will revive the recollection of the early days of Massillon.

The acquaintance of the writer with Mr. McCully commenced in 1826, immediately after the letting o that portion of the Ohio canal extending from the Portage Summit to what is now the Southern Line of this city, he being a sub-contractor on a section between here and the now thriving village of Fulton. On the completion of his contract in 1827, it being apparent that Massillon which had been laid out as a village the year before by the late James Duncan, Esq., must become an important business point, Mr. McCully formed a business connection with the late Judge William Henry and opened the first retail store in Massillon on the premises now occupied as a grocery store by Messrs. Diellenn & Son and N. Sibila, in which, under the name of A. McCully & Co., he was successful, and after a year or two purchased the interest of Judge Henry, with a younger brother, and under the name of A. & D. B. McCully the firm became prominent merchants, commanding deservedly an influence for integrity and uprightness which insured success and which success continued until the death of the junior partner in 1837.

In politics Mr. McCully was prominent as a democrat, was one of the first to organize that party in Stark county in the severe political canvass of 1828 which resulted in the election of Gen. Jackson to the presidency, and the revolutionizing of this, then, the 12th congressional district, which for years had been represented by the late Hon. John Sloane. The district was then composed of Wayne, Stark, and Columbiana, and in 1836 for the last time elected an "Adams man" by a majority of 98 votes. In 1828 the late Hon. John Thompson, democrat, was elected.

The contest of 1832 which in its unrelenting severity surpassed that of 1828, found Mr. McCully actively in the field, not as a candidate for office, but as an earnest advocate of the re-election of Gen. Jackson, to effect which, as far as possible, he purchased the village newspaper, the Massillon Gazette, then edited by the late James Allen, and retained Allen as editor, who is remembered as an able writer and genial gentleman; afterwards editor of the long gone National Republican, of Cincinnati, Ohio State Journal and other papers. He died in Nevada while editing the Washoe Times. In 1831 Mr. McCully was made postmaster here, which office he held until 1838 resigning to be succeeded by the late Matthew Johnson, Esq.

In 1833 he was a candidate for representative in the state legislature but was defeated by Rev. John Brown, the representation that year being Brown whig and Starkweather democrat. The means resorted to to defeat him could only be excused on the doubtful politico moral ground that "all is fair in politics." They were successful, and, politically, success will almost "sanctify a crime," as the history of politics sadly attests.

In the wide spread revulsion in money matters in 1836, Mr. McCully became involved, which embarrassment was heightened by the death of his brother, Daniel B. McCully, and resulted in the loss of much valuable real estate in this city, leaving him almost without means; still his generous nature never forsook him. While his means lasted his liberality continued. So long as he had anything to give he was the almoner of the poor and needy.

In 1843 he was elected auditor of this county, and was re-elected in 1845, after which he removed to Cincinnati, thence to Polo, Ill., where he remained until his death. He was a native of Danville, Montour Co., Pa., was born Oct. 15th, 1799, removed to Ohio with his parents, and in 1821 was married to Miss Elsie M. Roseborough, who with three children and ten grandchildren survives him. Politically, Mr. McCully during his long life was a democrat, was a supporter of Gen. Jackson in the dark days of 1833, and adhered to his early political associations to his death. He lived beyond three score and ten and after a year of intense suffering passed away enjoying that "peace of mind which passeth all understanding."

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring Gray Hair to its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. Faded or gray hair is soon restored to its original color with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed. But such as remain can be saved for usefulness by this application. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich glossy lustre and a grateful perfume.

LOCAL MATTERS.

The regular meeting of the board of trade will be held next Tuesday evening, October 25th, at Richeimer's Hall. A full attendance of all members is requested.

We are pleased to be informed that our Lutheran friends were favored with liberal contributions during the progress of their meetings the last few days.

Crockery a full stock that will be sold in entire or partial sets at cost at Estep's.

On last Friday evening, between 7 and 8 o'clock, we had a fine display—one of more than ordinary brilliancy—of auroral lights The sky to the northeast was unusually red, and while the phenomenon lasted it was seen in various parts of the country, east and west of us, with equal brightness. About the middle of November is the time for the shower of falling stars.

The largest stock of dress goods, shawls, and woolens ever offered in this city are now being opened at Ricks' which they are selling cheap.

Colored and plain black silks and other popular dress fabrics at Estep's.

Within the last week that noted character—frost—was noticed several mornings obtruding himself upon the attention of those who get out of bed in the morning: He has been rather modest in showing himself this season, thus far, but he will not let this bashfulness hinder his familiarity in a few weeks.

Collars—Plain linen, pure lace, mattese, and mourning, at Estep's.

All persons in want of cloths, cassimeres, satnets, tweeds, jeans, &c., will find it to their advantage to go to Ricks' and see the prices and goods.

The procession, on last Sunday, formed b the Lutheran congregation, when bidding adieu to the old church, made a very fine appearance, as it consisted of a large number of well dressed orderly people of both sexes. So many were present that the procession was a long one, and was viewed with respect by a large number of our citizens.

What added to the interest of the religious services on that day was music by a band from Cleveland. The pieces performed were appropriate to the occasion, and was listened to by all who heard with attention and admiration. The organist of the occasion, we are informed, was a gentleman from Cleveland, and a choir from Canton aided in the music of the day.

Estep has a good assortment of hem stitched, lace bordered, corded and plain L. C. handkerchiefs.

Ladies' and misses' embroidered, printed and balmoral skirts in large variety for sale at Ricks'.

Prof. Atwater of Alliance college preached in the Disciples church on Sunday evening. His discouse was marked by hard common sense on the theme of the utility of the church—that is, all religious organizations. He is a pleasing, earnest speaker, easily understood, and from his outlook, in our view, is a logical reasoner. He will preach at the same place every two weeks at the usual hours for religious services—10½ a. m. and 7 p. m.

The snow white velvet cord at Estep's will be appreciated for its beauty, economy and comfort.

We have just opened a new line of black beavers and velveteens for cloakings, which are very cheap, go to Ricks' and see the goods.

You can see the largest variety of shawls ever offered in this city, at Ricks', consisting of all the latest styles of the season, and at the very lowest prices.

A USEFUL SUGGESTION.—A late number of the Scientific American says—We have published several articles, on the subject (of the use of blast furnace slags), giving an account of the manufacture of chemical salts, cements, pavements, and the like, from what has always been a waste material, and now have the proposition to cast the cinder from the furnaces into slabs, garden rollers, posts, pillars, &c. In certain metallurgical operations these articles can be made to resemble porphyry. In some parts of Germany the slag is cast in molds, and at first used by the workmen for cooking and heating purposes, and afterwards for building walls, and houses The prospect is fair for slags becoming valuable for many purposes. Here hundreds of tons of this slag have been used for paving the streets, and it is a very superior article for that purpose, but there are thousands of tons of the same material lying waste in the vicinity of the furnaces, which, according to the above suggestion, might have been, when in a liquid state, made into useful shapes for various purposes. The experiment is well worth trying, and when the furnaces are again put in blast, we hope some ingenious mechanic, of which there are large numbers here, will carry out the intimations above proposed. What is done in Germany and elsewhere can also be done here. There is wealth for somebody in this heretofore wasted material, furnace slag.

A meeting of interest to the friends of Sunday Schools was held in this place yesterday, composed of our own and citizens from other places. These schools are the subject of much interest among the various denominations, and are attended by vast numbers of children, who imbibe teachings here which they will never forget.

Monday was a warm, clear, pleasant day, but at night the wind rose and for a short time was violent, doing mischief in some localities. Yesterday was much c ooler—a little approach toward winter.

A great light was seen eastward on Monday night, and since then it has been ascertained that a large barn this side of Canton was burned.

PAY UP.—All indebted to the old firm of Kelley Bros., will call and pay up immediately, GEO. V. KELLEY,

Last Sunday being an unusually beautiful day, more than the ordinary number of our people attended the different churches. We may have more Sundays like it, but the time of year is coming when that will be very doubtful.

GONE EAST.—I. B. Dangler is now east buying his second stock of fall and winter goods, and promises some nice goods at reduced prices.

Dr Banning, of New York, is now giving a very instructing course popular of lectures in the basement of the Episcopal church, on the mechanism of the body, in relation to physical education and the prevention and cure of weakness and deformity by his system of mechanical supports, whose lectures are are attracting the attention of our best citizens, among whom are our distinguished townsmen, Dr. Metz and others, who are the last to pander to anything short of what is sensible and valuable. On to-night (Wednesday) Dr. B. closes his course by a lecture on the "Motive Power of the Voice," illustrated by reading and recitations.

In another column it will be seen that Dr. B. may be consulted during this week at the American Hotel, for the cure of Hernia and weaknesses of the male and female systems; and we give the subjoined from an eminent physician, which, to say the least, seems to be replete in strong common sense.

A PHYSICIAN'S OPINION.

Although we are no physician, it appears to us that the following letter is full of sound common sense and of interest to sufferers from herina and affections of the spine, chest, digestive organs and the female system. At least it is worth reading.

DR. BANNING—Dear Sir:—I have been engaged in an extensive practice of medicine for nearly 30 years, and during that time have had much to do with chronic weakness particularly those to which the female system is liable, and have seen the utter failure of medicine to meet the great majority of those cases—the relaxation of the muscular fibre being such as require mechanical support. And here, again we have been disappointed, for nearly all the trusses, pressaries, supporters, &c., gives but partial relief.

Four years ago a friend put into my hand your teatise entitled, "Common Sense on Chronic Diseases." Your rational view of the mechanical cause of most chronic affections of the truncal organs, unfolded the difficulty and pointed out the true remedy.

Your barce is the only one which acts upon the principle of lifting without the same time resting for its support or fulcrum upon some parts that themselves need supporting.

It is most evident that a relaxation of the abdominal muscles must induce a corresponding falling of the bowels, stomach, liver and spleen, which rests upon them, and that these in turn will drag after them the diaphram itself; also, that the heart and lungs, which rests in some measure on the diaphram, will necessarily settle with it—and any one but slightly acquainted with all these organs, their relative position and, use must see that the result to the patient is like the opening of Pandora's box of ills and sufferings, for there is hardly an evil that does not follow upon a misplaced position and derangement of those organs.

I will allude to some of the most important:—If the lungs and heart are thus elongated and drawn down, difficulty in breathing, loss of voice, cough asthma, bleeding of the lungs, palpatation, &c., are likely to follow, ending in consumption. Loss of support and consequent displacement of the stomach with pressure of the garments upon it, will cause indigestion, and the numerous ills that follow in their train. A general pressure of the organs upon the viscera, nerves and the blood vessels of the pelvis, cause an obstructed circulation of the blood and nervous fluid to the lower extremities, and the consequence is, they become cold, numb, covered with varicose veins, and liable to other dangerous affections. Constipation and piles follow, the consequence of pressure upon the rectom and its blood vessles. A frequent inclination to avoid the urine, is caused by pressure upon the bladder, and falling of the womb, attending all such cases in the female, together with the attending train of suffering, usually termed nervous or neuralgic, are entirely beyond the power of my pen to describe.

That your body braces furnish as nearly a perfect remedy as can be found, I verily believe.

I would that every physician in the land would study your Common Sense, and throwing his prejudice, if he has any, to the moles and bats, test the correciness of your theory of the nature, cause and effect of such chronic affections—I wish so, nut that you may receive eclat for your discoveries though I acknowledge the principle of honor to whom honor is due, in your case as well as in others, but they may be better able to relieve the sufferings of those laboring under this class of diseases.

Yours, truly,
H. JOYLSLIN, M. D.

Syracuse, Oct. 15, 1856.

Dr. Banning may be consulted at the American House for a afew days.

Court of Common Pleas commenced on Monday last, at Canton, and will probably continue some four or five weeks, as a long calendar of business has accumulated.

Dr. Banning, who has had a long exerience in the healing art, has been in town for several days, and during this time has aided a number of persons, by mechanical means, of the protracted ailments to which they have been subjected.

Again the Wallace Sisters are here, greeting our citizens with many of their fine exhibitions on the stage. They will be favorably remembered by hundreds of our citizens, who were so gratified with their visit during a brief sojourn here last winter. Wherever they go they achieve success.

By posters liberally diffused over the city we notice that our old friend, D. W. Huntsman, has just opened a new furniture room, immediately over Mr. Conrad's Hardware store. He will keep on hand stock of the best quality adapted to the wants of all classes. As Mr. H. has had considerable experience in this branch of the business his patrons may rely on it that they will get their moneys worth in making purchases at his room.

TO PHYSICIANS.

NEW YORK, August 15th, 1868.

Allow me to call attention to my Preperation of Compound Extract Buchu. The component parts are Buchu, Long Leaf, Cubebs, Juniper Berries.

Mode of Preparation.—Buchu, in vacuo. Juniper berries, by distillation to form a fine gin. Cubebs extracted by displacement with spirits obtained from Juniper Berries, very little sugar is used and a small proportion of spirit. It is more palatable than any now in use.

Buchu as prepared by druggists, is of a dark color. It is a plant that emits its fragrance; the action of a flame destroys this (its active principle), leaving a dark and glutinous decoction. Mine is the color of ingredients. The buchu in my preparation predominates; the smallest quantity of the other ingredients are added, to prevent fermentation; upon inspection it will be found not to be a tincture, as made in pharmacopœa, nor is it a syrup—and therefore can be used in cases where fever or inflamation exists. In this, you have a knowledge of the ingredients and the mode of preparation.

Hoping that you will favor it with a trial, and that upon inspection it will meet with your approbation,

With a feeling of profound confidence,
I am, very respectfully.

NEW YORK CITY, March 28, 1870.

Having used Dr. Whittlesey's medicine, I have no hesitation in saying that in my case it proved a decidedly efficacious remedy for dyspepsia, and with the removal of the complaint, promoted a healthy action of the digestive organs generally. I should judge from its effects, that it combined ingredients which serve both as a mild tonic and aperient, contributing to the salutary action of the liver, and the purifying of the blood. Indeed, so happy have been the results produced by this medicine in my cure, that I shall certainly use it in future dyspeptic troubles in preference to any other pronounced remedy with which I am acquainted. I. LUAVYL ODGIERS.

P. S.—During five years' residence in India and Australia, when I was a member of the Civil Service, I experienced, with others, considerable inconvenience from dyspepsia and constipation occasioned by the great heat of the climate, and from what I know of Dr. Whittlesey's Vegetable Remedy, I feel convinced that its introduction into those countries would confer a vital benefit on the inhabitants, by invigorating the action of the liver, and stimulating the digestive organs. The best remedies I could procure at that time, as well as other remedies I tried in England, proved decidedly inferior in their curative properties to Dr. Whittlesey's.

Sarsaparillian
RESOLVENT.
NEW PRINCIPLES OF CURE.

Of all Wasting, Scrofulous, and Eruptive Diseases of the Eyes, Nose, Mouth, Throat, Ears, Head, LUNGS, Kidneys, Bladder.

THE SKIN MADE PURE, CLEAR, SMOOTH, AND BEAUTIFUL.

DR. RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT Establishes a new principle of Cure of all Chronic diseases: and proves to the medical world that Consumption and other Scrofulous diseases are curable. This fact has been demonstrated in over where one Lung in over seventy cases was destroyed and dried up, and in over 500 CASES OF SUSPECTED CONSUMPTION.

ONE HUNDRED CASES OF CONFIRMED CONSUMPTION

DR. RADWAY, three years since, published to the world his analysis of the Blood in the several stages of CONSUMPTION, showing in every stage, that where tubercles become deposited in the Lungs and other organs, as in the Kidneys, Liver, Spleen, Bronchial Glands, Intestines establishing Consumption of those organs, the BLOOD is thin, weak, pale, watery, and is deficent of such constituents as fibrin Albumen, Phosphorus, and the rich red coloring discs of the Blood Corpuscles. In the absence of these constituents in the Blood, the Blood is exhausted of strength and nourishment, and wherever there is inflammation it deposits tubercles and decomposition, it has not the power to hold in solution its natural constituents, and Ulcers, Sores, Tumors, Cancers, and Virulent Humors are formed, the presence of which causes inflammation, gathering, and consequent suppuration.

This, reader, is the true cause of the formation of Tubercles and Consumption. Dr. RADWAY was the first to advance this theory of the cause of Consumption and its kindred diseases, and prepared the RADWAY'S RESOLVENT to supply the blood with such constituents it was deficient of, in those conditions of system, and to give it the nourishment and strength to hold its natural constituents in solution. Dr. RADWAY'S theory was published in England, France, Germany, and America, and was seized upon by the scientific men of both hemispheres. From it has sent medical books have been since published by medical writers claiming to have discovered the cause of Consumption, but have failed to produce the remedy to cure. Dr. RADWAY was the first to advance this theory, and the first and only discoverer of a medicine that will cure. In RADWAY'S SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT the public have a remedial agent that will cure Consumption and all diseases of the LUNGS, BRONCHIAL KIDNEYS, BLADDER, WOMB, THROAT, GLANDS, AND URINARY ORGANS.

In all Wasting Discharges, such as Involuntary Loss of Sperm, Emissions, Weakness of the Genital Glands, Leucchorrhea, and all Uterine difficulties, Gravel, Lime Stone, Brick dust, Uric Acid, and Calculous Concretions, the SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT is a positive cure. In Dropsy, Diabetes, uncured Venereal Syphilis in its many forms, it cures when all other medicines fail.

EVERY DAY

an increase of flesh, weight, and strength is experienced. It is Fat-tissue, Caloric or Heat making. It is to the blood what oxygen is to the atmospheric air, it supplies the life principle. It swiftly removes from the surface all Spots, Blemishes, Pustules, Tetters, Rash, Flesh Worms, Sores, &c., imparting a

CERTIFICATE OF BEAUTY.

The following letter is from a highly-gifted lady, well known in the "circles of our best society."

"LAFAYETTE, Feb. 23, 1869.

"I had not much confidence in your SARSAPARILLIAN RESOLVENT. Having been disfigured for the last four months with BLOTCHES and PIMPLES, I resolved, at all events, to try it, and took TWO TEASPOONSFUL three times a day, as directed. It is not quite ONE MONTH since I commenced its use. To-day there is not a BLOTCH, spot, blemish, or defection of any kind on my person. * * * * *

A Torpid System.

Sometimes, without any assignable cause, the physical strength and animal spirits give way, and a strange torpor falls alike on the body and on the intellect. There is little or no pain perhaps, but the natural vigor and elasticity of the nervous and muscular system seems to have departed, and an indifference to the pleasures of life, and even of its grave responsibilities, takes the place of that earnest interest in both which characterizes every well balanced mind when in a healthy condition.

This state of partial collapse is often the premonitory symptoms of some serious malady. It indicates unmistakably that the vital powers are languishing and need a stimulant. In such cases the effect of a few doses of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is wonderfully beneficial. The great tonic wakens up the system from its drowse. The secretions and the circulations receive a new impetus. The relaxed nerves recover their elasticity under the operations of the specific, like the slackened strength of a musical instrument in the process of tuning. Lethargy and debility are replaced by energy and vigor, the spirits rise, and life that almost seemed a burden while the season of depression lasted, becomes once more enjoyable. That such a radical change should be produced by a remedy entirely devoid of the powerful alkaloids and minerals so extensively used in modern practice, may seem incredible to those who pin their faith on the medical efficacy of active poisons, but if these skeptics will take the trouble to enquire of those who have tested the corrective and alternative virtues of the bitters and the circumstances described, they will find the statement to be true.

ishler's Herb Bitters.

This celebrated tonic and stimulant will restore the digestive organs to a perfectly healthy state It will thoroughly eradicate all morbific matter from the blood, cleanse the entire system, and produce the most vigorous action of the different organs of the human body. It is the great blood purifier and infallible remedy for dyspepsia, cholera, cramps in the stomach, headache resulting from a deranged stomach, and also that harassing disease, sick headache, biliousness, etc. The fact that in all parts of the land the medical faculty prescribe Mishler's Herb Bitters for their patients who are afflicted with these diseases, should convince the most skeptical that this proprietary compound is a medicine upon which they can rely as absolutely efficacious In curing such diseases as we have enumerated above. Sold by all druggits. Price, one dollar. 379 4w

What Does Reason Say?

The little mongoose when bitten by a deadly serpent resorts to a certain plant, eats of it, and escapes the effect of the poison. That is instinct. Human beings on the other hand, must depend on reason and experience in selecting the means of protecting health and life against unwholesome influences. Now, what does reason say on this vital subject? Does it not tell us that to invigorate and purify the system is the best way to protect it against the invisible poison which generates disease? Surely it does. The next question is, what guide shall we follow in choosing a medicinal safeguard? Reason replies let your monitor be experience. Well, the experience of eighteen years comprised in one unbroken series of satisfactory testimonials assures us that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters possess strengthening, regulating, and antiseptic properties which are not combined in the same happy proportions in any other medicine extant. This therefore is the antidote to which reason bids us resort when our health is imperilled either by the malaria which produces epidemic disorders, or by any other cause, whether inherent and constitutional or connected with our habits, occupations and pursuits.

The venom of a noxious reptile is scarcely more subtile and dangerous than that which lurks in foul air and impure water. To escape the fevers, bilious disorders, disturbances of the bowels, and other serious maladies produced by these insalubrious elements it is absolutely necessary that the stomach and all the secretive organs should be, so to speak, in a robust condition. Upon the amount of resistance which the vital organs can oppose to the deleterious influences that assail it, the safety of the health depends, and it is because the great invigorant imparts energy and regularity to the most important functions of the body, that it can be recommended and guaranteed as an invaluable preventive medicine.

To the Nervous.

The natural result of exhustion of strength by excessive labor or action is a feeling of weakness, dullness, heaviness, weariness, langor of body or mind, etc. Persons of a weak constitution, or whose habits are sedentary, frequently complain of this relaxed condition of the vital energies; and when persons of a nervous temperament are thus weakened and debilitated, disease inevitably follows, unless it is checked and overcome. All who suffer from these causes alike require a remedy which will strengthen the system without exciting it, and awake a feeling of true enjoyment, so that life may become a source of pleasure. Mishler's Herb Bitters has won its way into the confidence of thousands of this class of persons, who warmly endorse it as the best invigorating agent, and the most potent and genial of all tonics and alteratives for strengthening and restoring the physical constitution.

BELTZHOOVER'S

Dyspeptic Bitters

Are fully attested by the certificates of well known gentlemen who have tested their virtues. Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, Ague, General debility, and similar diseases are totally eradicated from the system by their use, while as a blood purifier and appetizer, they are unapproachable.

At this season of the year ys- em is generally in a debil the human sn and a tonic is necessary for the presesvation of health. The Dyspeptic bitters are strongly recommended for their tonical virtues, and many persons are deriving great benefit from their use. These bitters are the best in the market, and are being generally adopted by our citizens.

Office on Main street, four doors east of the American Hotel.

All consultations and examinations of patients made free of charge.

Dr. Long examines and explains your disease without asking any questions. If he understands your case you know it, and cannot be deceived. If he cannot tell your disease, and how you feel, without asking questions he does not consider himself competent to treat your case. This is the criterion to go by, and patients should not be satisfied with any other. This is the only direct and positive evidence of my ability as a scientific physician, and by this standard I am willing to be judged.

A proper diagnosis of local disease, without constitutional symptoms, that is, not affecting the system generally, must depend upon the judgement of both patient and physician.

Give Dr. Long a call, and satisfy yourselves whether he understands your cases sufficiently well to treat them successfully.

Dr. Long may be consulted in the German and English languages. Address letters, Manhood: How Lost, How Restored.

The celebrated author, in this admirable essay, clearly demonstrates from a thirty years' successful practice that the alarming consequences of self abuse may be radically cured without the dangerous use of internal medicine or the application of the knife; pointing out a mode of cure at once simple, certain, and effectual, by means of which every sufferer, no matter what his condition may be, may cure himself cheaply, privately and radically.

This lecture should be in the hands of every youth and every man in the land.

MRS. ALLEN'S

Hair Restorer & Zylobalsamum

Are so uniformly grateful and beneficial, that they are with justice called the natural strengtheners of the human hair. They are two entirely separate and distinct preparations, not to be used together at one time.

Mrs. Allen's Hair Restorer

Never fails to satisfy the most refined and cultivated. A guarantee goes with every bottle, that it will quickly restore gray or white hair to its original youthful beauty, gloss and color; after its use a few times the hair will grow thicker and stronger. It will stop its falling and induce a healthy and luxuriant growth. It is an exquisite hair dressing, agreeable, harmless and healthy. Entirely different from most other preparations for the hair, its composition and ingredients are nourishing, giving life and vigor to the Roots.

Mrs. Allen's Zylobalsamum

This exquisite preparation is free from any sediment, and is a toilet treasure. The urgent want of a simple Hair Dressing, for the youth of both sexes, first induced the manufacture of the Zylobalsamum, and the sale of it is perfectly immense, not only in this country, but in Europe.

EXTRACTS FROM A FEW LETTERS.

"Your Zylobalsamum is used by every member, young and old, of our family, and we consider it invaluable. Should any gray hairs appear, we shall try your Hair Restorer, which we hear very highly spoken of."

"Father and mother use your Hair Restorer, and are delighted with it. It soon restored their gray locks to their youthful color, but daughters and son still find in the Zylobalsamum all their hair requires."

From the Principal of one of our large Female Seminaries: "Your Zylobalsamum has been used for many years by myself and family, and is the favorite among our young ladies."

Sold by all Druggists. Wholesale Depot, S. R. VAN DUZER & CO., 35 Barclay St. and 40 Park Place, New-York.

Continues to treat all private diseases, syphillis in all its forms, gonorrhœa, gleet, stricture, orchitis, and all urinary diseases, and the effects of mercury are completely eradicated; spermatorrhea or seminal weakness and impotency, resulting from self abuse or other causes, and which produce some of the following effects, as blotches, bodily weakness, indigestion, consumption, aversion to society, unmanliness, dread of future events, loss of memory, indolence, nocturnal emissions, and finally so prostrating the sexual system as to render marriage unsatisfactory, and therefore imprudent, are permanently cured.

It is self evident that the physician who confines himself exclusively to the study of a certain class of diseases and treats thousands of cases every year must acquire a greater skill in that speciality than one in general practice.

The establishment, comprising ten ample rooms, is central. When it is not convenient to visit the city, the doctor's opinion can be obtained by giving a written statement of the case, and medicines can be sent by mail or express.

The doctor publishes a medical pamphlet of fifty pages that gives a full exposition of venereal and privare diseases that can be had free at office or by mail, in sealed envelope, for two stamps. Every sentence contains instruction to the afflicted, and enabling them to determine the precise nature of their complaints.

DR. PIERCE'S ALT. EXT. OF GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY

This is the most thorough blood purifier yet discovered, and cures all humors from the worst scrofula to a common eruption. Pimples and blotches on the face, and a scaly or rough skin, which are such annoying blemishes to many young persons, yield to the use of a few bottles of this wonderful medicine. From one to eight bottles cures salt rheum, erysipelas, scald head, ring worms, boils, scaly eruptions of the skin, scrofula sores, ulcers, and canker in the mouth and stomach. It is a pure medicinal extract of native roots and plants, combining in harmony nature's most sovereign curative properties, which God has instilled into the vegetable kingdom for healing the sick. It is a great restorer for the strength and vigor of the system. Those who are languid, sleepless, have nervous apprehensions or fears, or any of the affections symptomatic of weakness, will find convincing evidence of its restorative power upon trial. If you feel dull, drowsy, debilitated and despondent, have frequent headache, mouth tastes badly in the morning, irregular appetite and tongue coated, you are suffering from torpid liver or biliousness. In many cases of liver complaint only a part of these symptoms are experienced. As a remedy for all such cases Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has no equal as it effects perfect cures, leaving the liver strengthened and healthy. For the cure of habitual constipation of the bowels it is a never failing remedy, and those who have used it for this purpose are loud in its praise. In bronchial, throat and lung diseases, it has produced many truly remarkable cures, where other medicines had failed. Sold by druggists at $1 per bottle. Prepared at the Chemical Laboratory of R. V. PIERCE, M. D. Buffalo, N. Y. 63-3m
